Born in Port-au-Prince, Haiti, Jeanty's upbringing was steeped in the rich traditions and vibrant culture of her homeland. From a young age, she was captivated by the beauty of her surroundings, finding inspiration in the vibrant colors, intricate patterns, and soulful rhythms that danced through Haitian life.

Jeanty's early artistic influences were as diverse as her Haitian heritage. She drew inspiration from the surrealist masters such as Salvador Dalí and René Magritte, the vibrant colors and bold lines of fauvism and expressionism, and the intricate symbolism and storytelling of Haitian Vodou art.

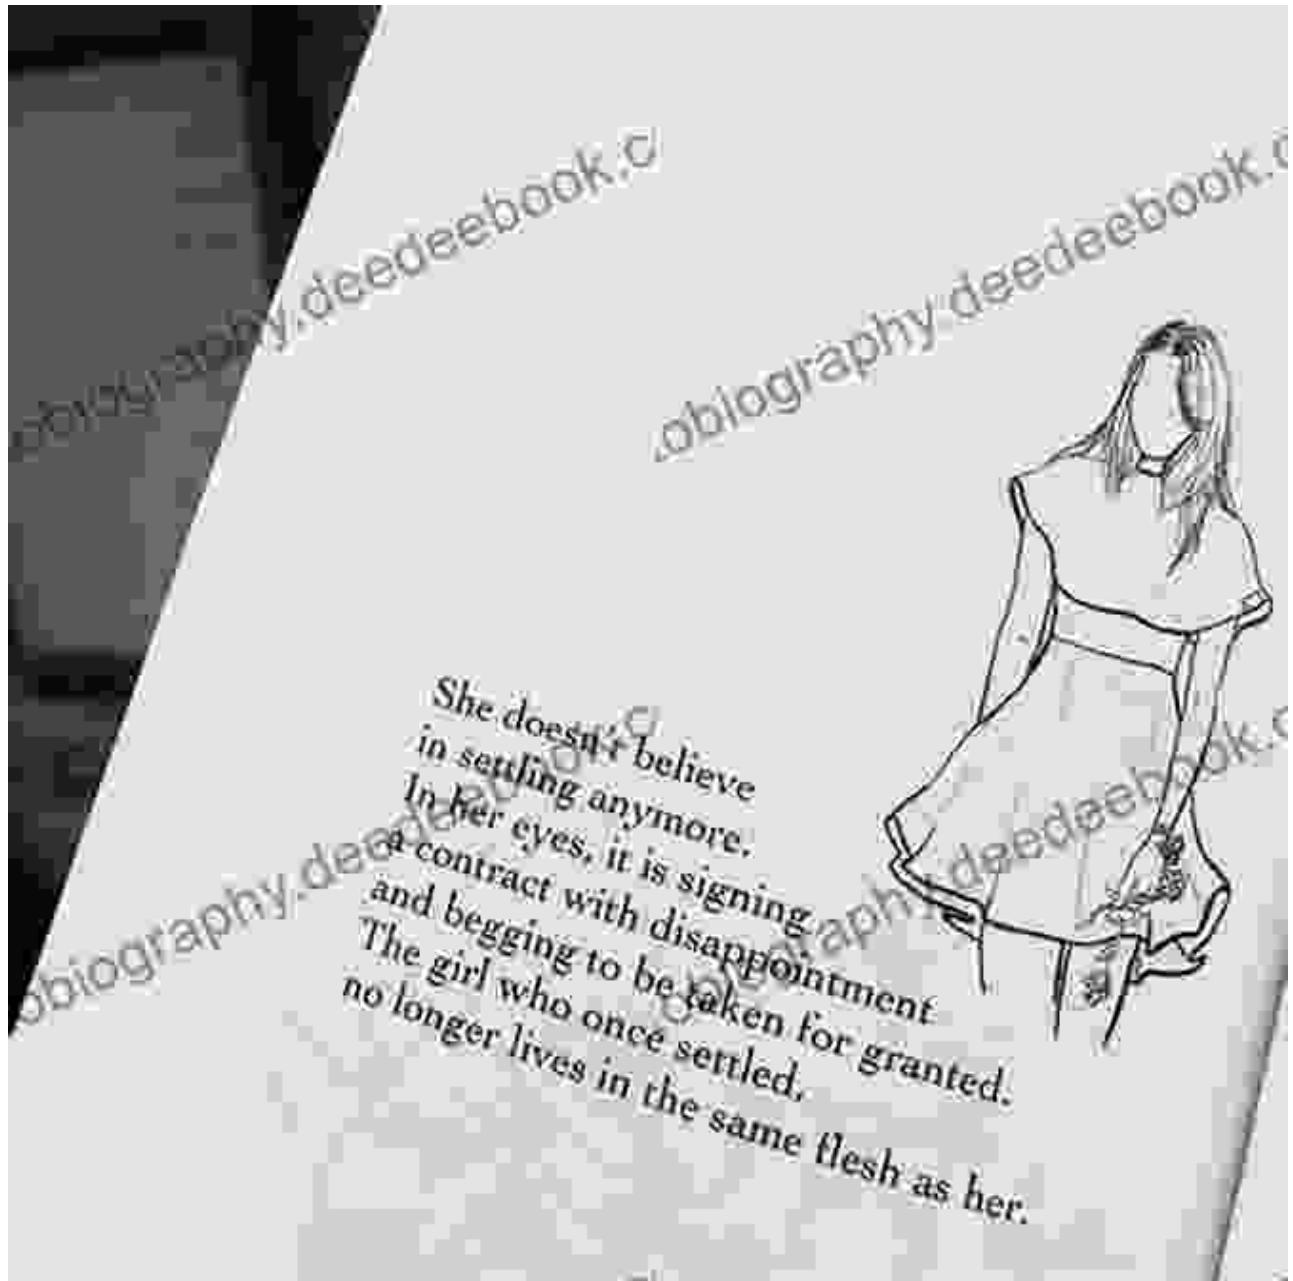

As she pursued her formal art education in the United States, Jeanty began to fuse these diverse influences into a unique and compelling artistic vision. She developed a signature style characterized by vibrant colors, ethereal figures, and a surrealist sensibility that invites viewers to explore the depths of their own imaginations.

One of the most striking aspects of Jeanty's work is her exploration of identity, particularly through the lens of her Haitian heritage. Her paintings often feature strong, black women adorned with elaborate headdresses and vibrant patterns that evoke the beauty and resilience of the African diaspora.

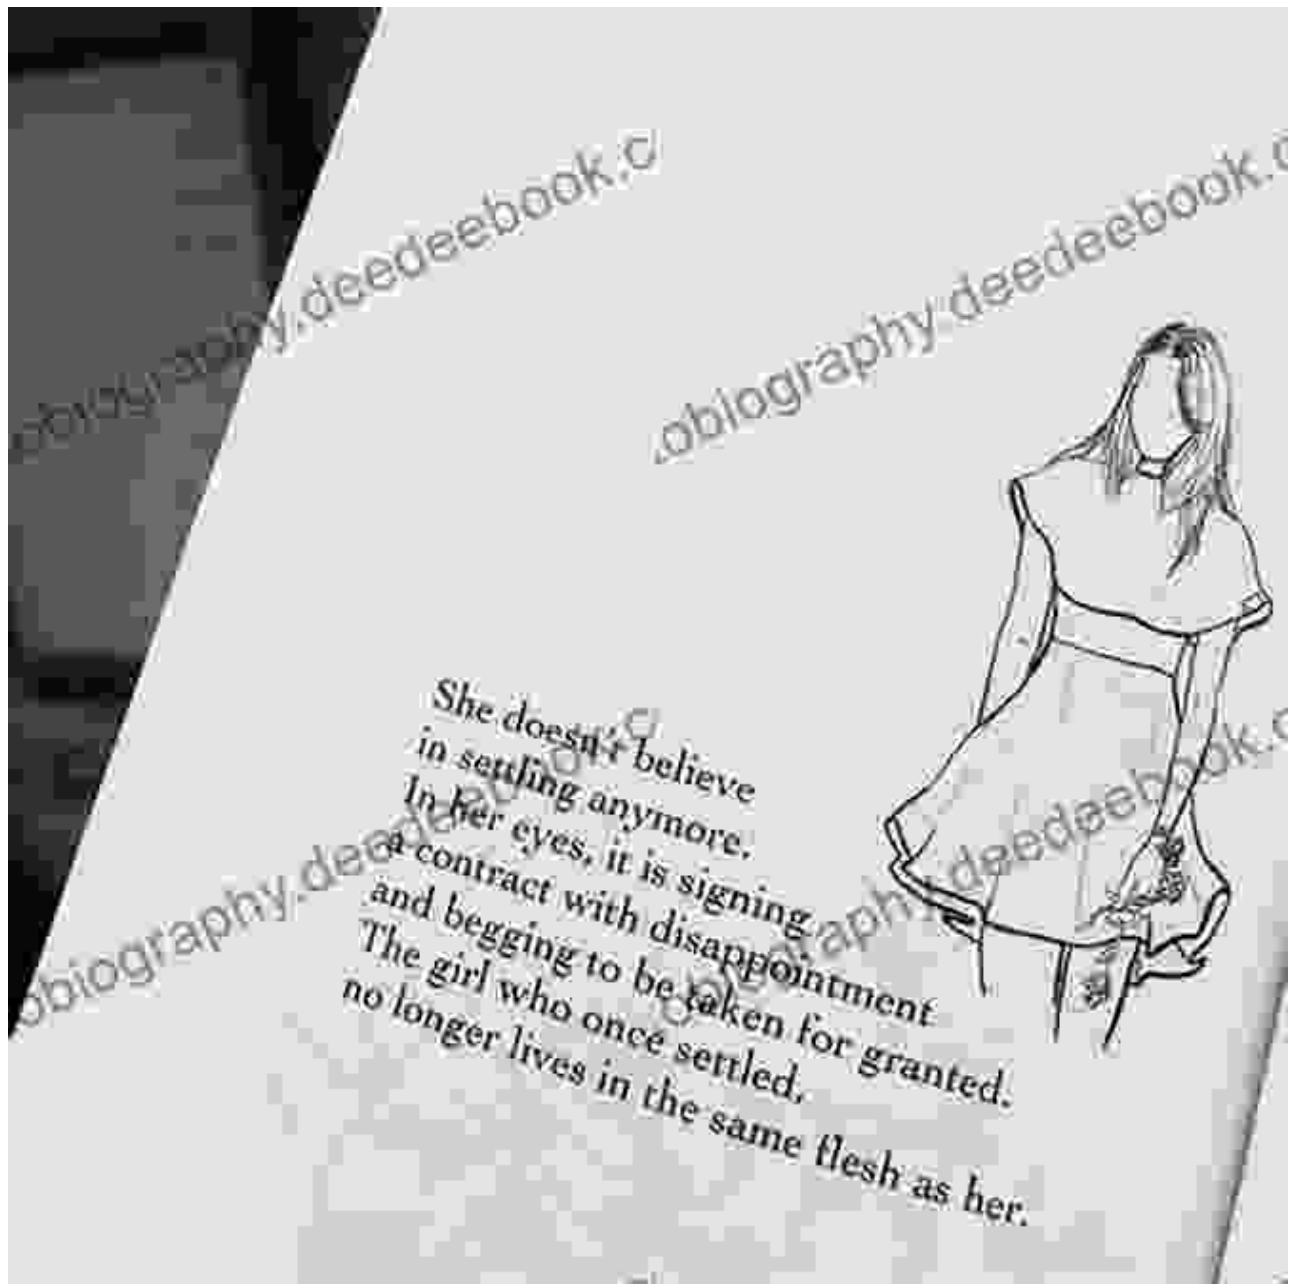

Jeanty's work also engages with themes of Afrofuturism, a genre that explores the intersection of African culture and science fiction. Her paintings depict futuristic landscapes and technologies, often inhabited by black women who embody power, creativity, and boundless potential.

Jeanty's paintings are not merely aesthetic creations; they are powerful expressions of her personal and cultural identity. Through her vibrant canvases, she invites viewers to challenge stereotypes, embrace their own beauty, and explore the limitless possibilities of the human spirit.

In recent years, Jeanty's work has gained increasing recognition and acclaim. She has exhibited in numerous galleries and museums worldwide, including the Smithsonian National Museum of African American History and Culture in Washington, D.C., and the Pérez Art Museum Miami.
