

The Expatriates: Biographies of Lost Generation Writers

The Lost Generation was a group of American writers who came to prominence in the 1920s and 1930s. They were disillusioned with the values of their parents' generation and rejected the materialism and conformity of American society. Instead, they sought refuge in Europe, where they could live more freely and explore their own creativity.

The Expatriates: Biographies of Lost Generation

Writers by Shirley Adams

★★★★☆ 4.2 out of 5

Language : English

File size : 956 KB

Text-to-Speech : Enabled

Screen Reader : Supported

Enhanced typesetting : Enabled

Word Wise	: Enabled
Print length	: 416 pages
Lending	: Enabled
Item Weight	: 1.31 pounds

The Expatriates is a collection of biographies of some of the most famous Lost Generation writers, including Ernest Hemingway, F. Scott Fitzgerald, Gertrude Stein, and Ezra Pound. These writers were all born in the 1890s and came of age during World War I. They were deeply affected by the war, which they saw as a senseless waste of life.

The Expatriates left America in search of a new life and a new beginning. They found it in Europe, where they were free to express themselves without fear of censorship. They also found a sense of community among other expatriates, who shared their values and their love of literature.

Ernest Hemingway

Ernest Hemingway was born in Oak Park, Illinois, in 1899. He was a brilliant writer, but he was also a troubled man. He suffered from alcoholism, depression, and post-traumatic stress disorder. He was married four times and had three children. He died by suicide in 1961.

Hemingway's writing is characterized by its simplicity and directness. He wrote about the things he knew best: war, love, and death. His most famous works include The Sun Also Rises (1926), A Farewell to Arms (1929), and The Old Man and the Sea (1952).

F. Scott Fitzgerald

F. Scott Fitzgerald was born in St. Paul, Minnesota, in 1896. He was a talented writer, but he was also a spendthrift and a drunk. He was married to Zelda Sayre, a beautiful and eccentric woman who suffered from mental illness. He died of a heart attack in 1940.

Fitzgerald's writing is characterized by its lyricism and beauty. He wrote about the American Dream and the disillusionment that followed. His most famous works include This Side of Paradise (1920), The Great Gatsby (1925), and Tender Is the Night (1934).

Gertrude Stein

Gertrude Stein was born in Allegheny, Pennsylvania, in 1874. She was a pioneering modernist writer who experimented with language and form. She was also a lesbian and a close friend of Ernest Hemingway. She died of cancer in 1946.

Stein's writing is characterized by its fragmented and experimental style. She wrote about the complexities of human relationships and the nature of identity. Her most famous works include Three Lives (1909), Tender Buttons (1914), and The Autobiography of Alice B. Toklas (1933).

Ezra Pound

Ezra Pound was born in Hailey, Idaho, in 1885. He was a brilliant poet who was also a fascist sympathizer. He was imprisoned in a mental hospital for 12 years after World War II. He died in Venice, Italy, in 1972.

Pound's poetry is characterized by its complexity and its use of allusion and fragmentation. He wrote about a wide range of topics, including politics, history, and literature. His most famous works include The Cantos (1922-1972), Personae (1909), and Hugh Selwyn Mauberley (1920).

The Expatriates were a group of brilliant writers who left America in search of a new life and a new beginning. They found it in Europe, where they were free to express themselves without fear of censorship. They also found a sense of community among other expatriates, who shared their values and their love of literature.

The Expatriates made a significant contribution to American literature. Their writing helped to change the way we think about the world and ourselves. They are still read and admired today for their honesty, their courage, and their brilliance.

The Expatriates: Biographies of Lost Generation

Writers by Shirley Adams

★★★★☆ 4.2 out of 5

Language : English
File size : 956 KB
Text-to-Speech : Enabled
Screen Reader : Supported
Enhanced typesetting : Enabled
Word Wise : Enabled
Print length : 416 pages
Lending : Enabled
Item Weight : 1.31 pounds

Education And Peace Montessori 10: Where Learning Flourishes in a Haven of Harmony

A Symphony of Learning and Well-being Amidst the hustle and bustle of the modern world, there exists a sanctuary where learning and peace intertwine seamlessly—Education...

Unveiling the Wonders of Language and Literacy Development: A Comprehensive Guide

Language and literacy are fundamental aspects of human development that allow us to communicate, learn, and connect with the world around us. The journey...